

A FORTUNATE MILL.—An exchange gives the following, which is worth reading.

whether it be true or not. It is given us an air of certainty which is strong evidence of its veracity:

Some years ago a Frenchman, who was king by the day or month, in a mill, in town of Prairie du Rocher, Illinois, hired to about $40,000, by the death of a relative in France, since which time he has been living on the interest of his money. We believe the mill referred to is owned by Mr. A. H. Lee.

On the 24th of July, 1845, there was sold a man by the name of Julius Wagzlin, who was then working in a mill in Prairie du Rocher, owned or conducted by A. H. Lee, a lottery ticket, in one of Murray, July, & Co.'s lotteries, which drew for the grand prize one-half of the grand capital sum of $30,000.

On January 21st, 1846, the ticket in the

NEW ALBANY MUSIC HALL:—The first night of the inimitable John E. Owens and the elegant Music Hall to overflowed, all the seats being taken and all the audience delighted, and the bright parties, as well as the company, acquitted themselves with great credit. We are anxious to see that the citizens of our neighboring city have extended to Mr. Owens nearly a welcome. No doubt the remaining nights will be a continued triumph for our favorite comedian.

RAILROAD TO KNOXVILLE.—The Hartsville (Tenn.) Vidette says it is suggested that the road from Nashville to Knoxville could be built cheaper if it intersected the Louisville and Nashville Railroad at Gallatin, and then passed along the valley on the north side of the Cumberland through Hartsville, and crossed the river at Carthage. This, it is believed, would save the building of a bridge over the Cumberland and also the building of nearly six miles of road, that being the distance from Gallatin to Nashville.

Maratti, the young man who was convicted of highway robbery at the late term of the Campbell County Criminal court and sentenced to three years' imprisonment in the Penitentiary. He has now remitted the fine of $250 and six months' imprisonment of the youth Dickson, who committed an aggravated assault upon an old woman named Ragland.

During the ice blockade, the receipts of the Newport and Covington wharves have been about $800 per week.

And in all things poor. How often has the poet said: "Amanda is not poor." But an intellect well-balanced and a heart full of sympathy, in perceiving the former and expanding the latter, walked among us as a truly child and a truly woman. Her life was a life of grace and of doing good; never doing harm. She was a mother, a friend, a comforter. So that "Amanda Higgins" and "Amanda" were the same person. Her life was a love; and even wherever her precious name is uttered, it is a benediction. A true Christian, and is now, no doubt, with the angels. N. A. RICH.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Ky., Jan. 5, 1916.

The Reaper. Death, now in the fields,
Has raised the good, ripe grain to yield;
And merrily passed the rest.

Around and o'er, Amanda's tomb,
The flowers of life are blossoming about;
Not like the types of perennia grow,
To show "Amanda sleeps below."

In Memory's past and true record
Of her life, we are assured.

Loved by her friends: *Kiss her sad nose,
Thou dost her life's pure history show.*
A school girl, maiden, daughter, wife—
In each relationship of life.
Yes, from the cradle to the tomb,
That life was one mid, sweet perfume.
Come to her resting place of Lows,
Now with the good and pure above—
Her dust must dwell in the ground
Till the Arch-angel's trump shall sound.
